Klan Fight Over Platform Decided By Majority of One

Hitherto Unknown Heights of Noise and Disorder Reached on Sunday Morning in Democratic National Convention—Klan Not Named in Platform Declared Adopted, Although There Were Many Dissenting Votes.

The most disorderly session of the Democratic national convention in New York was that of Saturday evening, which lasted until after 2 o'clock Sunday morning. The main fight was on the Ku Klux Klan question, although a debate lasting for two hours was had on the League of Nations plank in the platform. Orators poured forth impassioned pleas, the galleries applauded and hooted, persons not entitled to vote attempted to do so, points of order were made and, finally, the report of the committee on rules was declared adopted, although the noise made by those voting in the negative was much greater than that made by those voting in the affirmative. Even on the motion to adjourn, made after 2 o'clock Sunday morning, there was a tremendous volume of noise made by those voting in the negative.

The platform committee reported a plank approving the League of Nations idea, but demanding that it be "taken out of politics" and submitted to a direct vote of the people. A minority, led by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, reported a substitute plank endorsing the League of Nations.

After two hours of debate the Baker substitute was rejected by a vote of 353½ to 742½.

The big fight on the Klan plank then began. The majority report did not name the Klan, but denounced secret political societies. The minority report denounced the Ku Klux Klan and all other secret political societies.

After two hours of debate the roll call began amid great confusion, votes being challenged and the accuracy of announcements disputed. Many votes were changed during the roll call. Several states had to be polled by the secretary of the convention. After the roll call seemed completed it was recapitulated by states and numerous further changes were made, all amid a shower of challenges, points of order, motions to adjourn and the howling of the galleries. The final result as officially announced, was the rejection of the minority report by a majority of one vote.

On the adoption of the platform as a whole Franklin D. Roosevelt demanded a roll call. He did not get it and the platform was declared adopted although there was a tremendous shouting of "no."

On a motion to adjourn, also declared adopted, there was also a loud negative vote.

Coutant Brothers Drowned Sunday in Adirondack Lake

Raymond and Ennis Coutant of Union Center, Bright Young Men in Employ of the General Electric Company, Drowned in East Caroga Lake—One Had Been a Special Student of Steinmetz.

Raymond C. Coutant, 21 years old, and his brother, Ennis Coutant, aged 19, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Olan Coutant of Union Center, lost their lives at East Caroga late Sunday when both were drowned while swimming. The Coutant brothers, who were employed at the General Electric Company plant at Schenectady, had gone for a week end camping vacation in the Adirondacks. Just what happened could not be distinguished by the people on shore some 300 yards away but it is thought one of the boys was seized with a cramp while swimming and in an effort by the other to save his brother both were drowned.

The Coutant brothers were bathing from a boat which they had hired for an hour at Bedford's on the lake. The proprietor of the store said he saw one of the young men sink from sight and the other swam toward him and he also disappeared.

The boys were the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Olan Coutant of Union Center, town of Esopus, and were both graduates of the Kingston high school. Ennis was in the research laboratory of the General Electric Company and Raymond was in the accounting department of the same company. They made their home with the Rev. Cornelius Van Oostenbrugge, Schenectady county chaplain, and a former pastor of the Ulster Park Reformed Church and the Union Center Chapel. Mr. Van Oostenbrugge resides at 1822 Union street where Ennis had stayed for about three years and his brother for about a year and a half since going to Schenectady. Ennis was a special student of the late Charles P. Steinmetz in the research laboratory of the company.

According to statements given out by the Rev. Mr. Van Oostenbrugge the boys had left home Saturday for a week end camping trip, expecting to visit friends on the trip. They arrived at the general store at East Caroga lake and left their camping equipment there while they went bathing.

The young men sank in about 30 feet of water and campers under the direction of men from the sheriff's office of Fulton county were assisting in an attempt to recover the bodies.

Boy Scout Movement Takes Big Step Forward

Men Responsible For Work of Organizing and Maintaining Troops Hold First of Series of Monthly Meetings Near to Nature's Heart and Plan for the Future.

(Contributed.)

Saturday afternoon at four o'clock a group of men consisting of the local council president, scout executives, scout commisisoners, scout masters and assistant scoutmasters, all vitally interested in Boy Scout work in Ulster county retreated to a quiet and secluded spot in the Catskills.

All of these men were interested in knowing what the other fellow was doing in the interests of Scouting and how he was doing it. Most of the group realized the tremendous advantage of everybody working together in order to attain a definite end, rather than following the every man for himself method of doing things that seem to be getting a very firm grip on the entire county of Scout workers. Finally, an idea came along. Why not get all these Scout workers together out in God's backyard where they can get acquainted with each other, swap scouting idea's, make plans for future work and in fact, talk things over in general. The idea grew rapidly and (thanks to our friend and Council President S. Burrell Schwarzwaelder) as a result, Saturday evening found a splendid group of Ulster County Scout Workers enjoying hamburger steaks, coffee, cake etc., in a mighty fine log cabin up back of Chichester, N. Y.

By the time they had finished after dinner stories, smokes, a contest consisting of shooting pennies off a rock to determine those best qualified to wash dishes, etc., everybody called the other fellow by his first name and many warm friendships were started along their way rejoicing.

Later on, as everybody sat around the open fire, thinking talking, acting and even breathing Better Boy Scouts for Ulster county, one of the biggest and finest things in the history of local Scouting happened. Right then and there the Ulster County Scout Leaders Association took life, became a reality and once a month all year around the Association will have an overnight get-to-gether where all active Scout workers throughout the County can hash over their problems, idea's, plans and in fact, every thing pertaining to Scout work in the County. The outing was doing everybody so much good in the way of getting Scouting moving along, that the need for continued get-togethers became self evident if all Scout workers were going to put their shoulder to the same side of the big wheel.

By the time the midnight oil had been burning for some time, officers of the Association had been elected, plans made for the next meeting to be held on the second Saturday in July, just before the big Scout camp and everyone was throughly pleased with the events of the day. Finally, at an hour not to be mentioned, cots were put up, bunks were made and everyone gave themself willing into the hands of Morpheus with the mental and moral satisfaction of having made a mighty big stride toward the betterment of Scouting throughout the entire county.

Breakfast Sunday morning consisted of bacon and eggs, after which some went to church while the rest took their communion with God and nature in the open fields. Noon found everyone with an appetite of a whale and too hungry to tell whether the dinner was good, bad or otherwise. A few more hours discussing Scouting in general and a short hike, wound up the week end, after which automobiles headed toward Kingston again with every occupant thoroughly glad he had come, mighty enthusiastic about their work as well as the other fellow's work and counting the days until the next get-together of the Ulster County Scout Leaders' Association.

Public Parks Being Abused

Frequenters of City's Playgrounds Making Nuisance of Selves—No One to be Allowed in Parks After 9:30 O'Clock at Night.

A consultation of the city officials relative to conduct of the public parks in the city was held today. It was the concensus of opinion that the parks were being abused by frequenters and the police department was directed to make arrests for disorderly conduct of persons found in a playground park after 9:30 o'clock in the evening. Conduct at other hours of the day will also be investigated and strict rules of conduct enforced. This order applies to every city park with the exception of Academy Park where frequenters, as long as they behave themselves may stay later than 9:30 o'clock.

Parents of young boys and girls who frequent the parks are requested to look carefully into this matter for themselves. By doing so they may save themselves serious trouble and embarrassment.

Miss Elsie Haines of Tillson is in the Benedictine Hospital with serious injuries as the result of an auto accident at Perrine's Bridge on the Kingston-New Paltz state road Sunday evening. She was riding in the car with William J. Maguire of Hooker Terrace, Poughkeepsie. His car crashed into the stone wall at the Van Kleeck place and was badly wrecked. With Mr. Maguire was his wife, his sister, Mrs. Elsie Tillou of 158 Mill street, Poughkepesie, and Miss Haines, his sister-in-law.

The other three escaped with a shaking up and bad bruises, but it was found that Miss Haines was more seriously hurt. All four received first aid from Dr. Trainer of New Paltz and brought to the hospital here, where he was assisted by Dr. Mark O'Meara. The other three were able to leave after having their wounds dressed.

At the hospital today it was stated that Miss Haines's condition was favorable.

Walsh Upholds The Unit Rule

Missouri Delegates, Bitterly Opposed to McAdoo and Refusing to Vote for Anyone, Are Counted as Voting for the Man They Oppose.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 30.—On the first roll call in the Democratic national convention this morning Missouri's vote was split among a half dozen candidates, most being for McAdoo and 8 delegates answering "present." Missouri had adopted the unit rule and the chairman of the delegation attempted to deliver the full vote of the state for McAdoo. It was then that a demand was made for a poll of the delegates. Delegate Shannon challenged the delivery of the solid vote for McAdoo.

"We chose this method of protesting against the unit rule because it is not an expression of the people of Missouri," said Shannon. Shannon explained that Reed had 400 votes in the state convention and McAdoo 90. A resolution, he said, had been introduced endorsing McAdoo, but it was rejected and then a "trick resolution" was put over to prevent Reed's friends on the delegation from voting for him. He charged that money had been sent into the state of Missouri to influence the delegation's vote.

Shannon explained that the reason he and his colleagues voted "present" was that they would under no circumstance vote for McAdoo and he thus chose not to be bound by a unit rule.

This voting of "present" would reduce the total vote of the state, he continued, even if the unit rule was upheld, for even that rule no one could be compelled to vote.

At Shannon's renewed charge that money had been used there were hisses and boos from the Missouri delegation.

State Senator Ferris of Missouri was then recognized to answer Shannon's argument.

Walsh ruled that hannon's protest could not be upheld, as it was contrary to precedents and he ordered the entire vote of Missouri cast for McAdoo.

Convention Vote Widely Scattered

McAdoo Leads, But Is 300 Votes Short of Number Necessary For Winning—Smith, Second, Makes Slight Gains—Roll Call Delayed By Missouri Fight.

Six ballots in the Democratic national convention today failed to produce a nominee.

Both William G. McAdoo and Governor Al Smith showed slight gains as the balloting proceeded, but in each case it was negligible.

McAdoo polled 443.6 on the fourth ballot, as against 260 for Governor Smith and the rest were still scattered among a dozen men.

Ex-Governor James M. Cox ran third in the race, with Senator Oscar Underwood and Senator Glass trailing.

John W. Davis and Senator Samuel M. Ralston, the most feared dark horses were far back.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 30.—Down to bedrock at last after a week of turmoil and strife such as few major presidential gatherings have seen, the Democratic national convention assembled in Madison Square Garden this morning and fought the opening rounds of an endurance fight that is to produce an opponent for Calvin Coolidge in November.

The atmosphere of the battle-scarred old fighting place was one of tensity, mixed with relief that the principal business of this epochal gathering had arrived at last.

The delegates assembled in the Garden still nursing the sore spots from the turbulent battle between Klan and anti-Klan that marked the last session. But it was evident that the bitterness of that conflict had been largely dissipated over the week end and the temper of the delegates plainly was against any effort to renew the struggle.

Difficulties arose again in the Missouri delegation over the state's course of action. At a caucus of the Missourians it was decided by a majority to observe the unit rule and vote the delegation solid for McAdoo from the first ballot onward, but the anti-McAdoo delegates under the leadership of Joe Shannon, of Kansas City, announced that would fight such a course and demand a poll of the delegation on every ballot.

It was 10:20 when Chairman Walsh began pounding for order and instructed the delegates to take their seats.

Invocation was offered by the Rev. Gustav Carstensen, of the Holy Rood Protestant Episcopal Church of New York.

"The next order of business," said Walsh, when the minister finished, "is the vote by states on the nomination for presidency."

Lawrence F. Quigley of Massachusetts, one of the anti-Klan leaders, interrupted the proceedings by rising for information.

"I want to know what would be the action of the chair if it were proved that a delegate voted on Saturday night under intimidation and such delegate is now ready to change his vote."

This referred to the vote switching that accompanied the Klan battle.

There were cries of "put him out" from all parts of the house.

"The chair knows of no rule by which the inquiry of the gentleman from Massachusetts can be answered," said Walsh. Franklin D. Roosevelt, manager for Smith, arose and demanded "the regular order of business."

Walso then explained the rules governing the votes. He served notice that if anyone in the delegations desired to challenge the accuracy of the report of the chairman of his delegation it had to be done at the time.

"The secretary will proceed with the roll call," he finished and the ballot was on.

The first ballot resulted:

McAdoo, 431½.
Ralston, 30.
Underwood, 42½.
Cox, 59.

Sweet, 12.
Pat Harrison, 43½.
John B. Kendrick, 6.
Houston Thompson, 1.

Total cast, 1,096; necessary to choice, 731.

After the first ballot, William J. Bryan was recognized to present a resolution.

"By unanimous request," said Bryan, "of the committee on resolutions, I present a resolution separate from the platform."

He then proceeded to read a resolution expressing the regret of this Democratic convention at the death of the late President Harding.

The resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

The second ballot was then begun. Missouri again demanded a poll of the delegation, which was made by the secretary of the convention.

During the balloting Joseph B. Shannon and Charles M. Hay, of the Missouri delegation, almost came to blows. A policeman kept them apart. There were cries of "boo" from floor and galleries as the individual roll call of the Missouri delegation went on.

Smith made a gain of about ten votes on the second ballot while McAdoo lost half a vote. The field continued widely scattered among nearly a score of candidates. Both Illinois and Pennsylvania delegations kept their votes widely scattered.

When Shannon's name was called on the roll in the Missouri delegation Miss Sarah Turner, his alternate cast the vote for John W. Davis.

Totals of second ballot:

McAdoo, 431.
Ralston, 30.

Robinson, 41.
Ritchie, 21½.
Jonathan M. Davis, 23.
Sweet, 12.
Kendrick, 6.
Thomas J. Walsh, 1.
Huston Thompson, 1.

The floor was in confusion as the Missouri poll proceeded, the anti-McAdoo element splitting their votes between Davis, Smith and Governor Ritchie of Maryland.

Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York meanwhile had succeeded Walsh in the chair.

There was a long pause after the Missouri poll. Walsh came back to the platform.

The Missouri result was McAdoo 25, Davis 5, Smith 5, Ritchie one. Copeland then upheld the unit rule again and ordered all thirty six cast for McAdoo.

The third ballot resulted:

Boys Start a Forest.

The reforesting idea is making recruits rapidly among the rising generation in many parts of the state. Two 12 year old boys living at Warrensburg, Warren county, have saved about $40 between them to start a forest plantation. They have procured a small tract of waste land and plan to use the money to plant it next spring and as fast as they can obtain additional land, keep on planting from year to year. Several Warrensburg men on hearing of the plans, have agreed to donate trees to the young planters.

Factory Earnings Less in State

Payrolls In New York State Manufacturing Industries In May Were Ten Percent Less Than a Year Ago—Average Weekly Pay $27.54.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 30.—Payrolls in the manufacturing industries of New York State in May were nearly 10 per cent less than they had been two months before and a little more than 10 per cent below those of May, a year ago. This March, it is estimated, the purchasing power put into the hands of the workers in the manufacturing industries amounted to about $37,500,000 weekly. By May the figure had been reduced to about $34,000,000, that is, the loss was about three and one-half million dollars. This statement was made today by Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag of the State Department of Labor.

"It is evident," said the commissioner, "that the trading activities of the state may still depend upon large sums of money to be put into circulation as factory workers' earnings. Even at the low point of 1921-22 factory payrolls reached a weekly total of about $27,500,000 However, ten million dollars represents the difference between prosperity and depression. The total volume of factory wage payments was smaller in May this year than it has been at any time since October, 1922. Yet it must be remembered that this volume and the purchasing power it represents is still 16 per cent higher than was the average in 1921."

In the recent expansion the number of factory employes reached its maximum in March, 1923. Despite a slight decline in employment in the next two months increases in basic wage rates carried payrolls upward until May. A yearly comparison in March this year showed payrolls quite as large as they had been a year before. Since then, however, trade reaction has carried payrolls down sharply.

The average weekly pay of factory employes in this state in May was $27.54. This represents a drop of 62 cents from the average in March. Because employers in cutting forces usually retain a relatively large proportion of office help, foremen and higher priced employes generally, the loss to the individual worker because of reduced working time has no doubt been larger than appears in these figures. Wage rate changes continue very few and the increases slightly outnumber the reductions.

The decline since March has been more severe in Syracuse than in any of the larger cities of the state. The prospects for the merchants in this district have been affected by a drop in factory payrolls amounting to 17 per cent in two months and to 12 per cent as compared with May, 1923.

New York city payrolls are in about the same position as those for the total state. Their total is nearly 10 per cent less than that for March or that for May a year ago.

The decline in orders for railroad equipment had previously brought a reduction in earnings in the industrial area which has Buffalo for its center. With the curtailment in other metal plants since March, the aggregate of wage payments here in May was 16 per cent less than in May last year.

The reaction in Binghamton has not been so severe in the last two months. But for some time factories here have not been so busy as they were in 1923. In May a comparison showed a loss of 12 per cent from the high level of May, 1923.

On the whole the amount of money paid to garment workers in Rochester in May was only three-quarters of what it was at this time last year. Wage totals in the instrument and optical goods factories, however, were higher than those of last year. In the total the decline from last year was only 5 per cent, the most favorable ratio reported from any large manufacturing center in the state.

The Capitol District ranked next to Rochester in maintaining the level of 1923. But the situation among the different communities here varies a great deal because of the wide difference in the industries centering in the various cities of the district. Payrolls in the textile plants in May amounted to only about two-thirds of the total in May last year and the shirt and collar industry and the railroad equipment and repair shops show a loss of about 25 per cent. On the other hand, more money was paid out this year than last by the manufacturers of machinery and electrical apparatus and in the printing establishments.

As in the Capitol District, the fortunes of merchants in the cities of the Utica Area vary a great deal with the course of earnings in the larger industries. In the total, payrolls here in May were 13 per cent below those of May, 1923. In the textile plants the loss amounted to 20 per cent of last year's total but was only four per cent in the metal industries. In the latter group the firearms, tool and cutlery establishments were still paying out more money in May than they did last year.

Probably the reason why it is not good etiquette to wear a watch with a dress suit is because a fellow never has a watch and a suit at the same time.

In many cases it's Wine, Women and Sing Sing.

The Lady—Oh, constable, I feel so funny!

The P. C.—What's the matter, madam? Have you vertigo?

The Lady—Oh, yes, constable; about two miles.

Woman—Yes.

Farmer—Be ye the woman?

Woman—Yes.

Farmer—Well, then I think I'll keep Maggie.

Elizabeth came to school one day in a state of suppressed excitement. Going straight to the teacher's desk, she exclaimed exultantly:

"I've got a new little sister!"

"How very nice," replied the teacher.

"Yes," said Elizabeth, "but this is only a half sister."

"Why, that doesn't make any difference, does it?"

"No, but I never can understand where the other half it."

Men's shirts were never so gaudy. Probably the motive is revenge on women's silk handkerchiefs.

Men talk about money; women talk about men. That thing that intrigues us is the thing that is hard to get.

First: Rent a safe deposit box (only $3.00 a year) in our modern new vault.

Second: Put your bonds, deeds, insurance policies, bank books and other valuables in your box.

Then go away for a vacation free from worry, secure in the knowledge that your valued possessions are safe.

88 Known Dead In Ohio Tornado

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lorain, Ohio, June 30.—With sixty bodies recovered, work was continued today in the pile of debris that marks part of the State Theater sight where still other bodies are believed to be buried as a result of the cyclone which struck here late Saturday, injuring hundreds and inflicting property damage that may reach $25,000,000 or more.

The city was under martial law today as the workers donated by two big corporations continued their work. Soldiers with drawn bayonets patrolled the streets, curiosity seekers were turned back with scant courtesy, or—if they are able bodied men—impressed with the work of cleaning up. The only passes recognized were those signed by Brigadier General J. R. McQuigg, in command of the Ohio National Guard units on duty here.

Just how high the casualty list will be remains unknown today. More than 100 persons were reported missing by family and friends, in addition to the identified dead, but it was thought that as the work of rescue progressed many of these would be found to have taken refuge elsewhere. Dr. William E. Lower, in charge of Red Cross headquarters, estimated the probable dead at 150.

Many East Lorainers, on the other side of Black river, from the main town, are also believed to have lost their lives. Here 150 houses were levelled by the fury of the gale, and it was believed today that clearing away of the wreckage there would reveal many more bodies.

Governor A. V. Donahey, who arrived from Columbus late yesterday to determine what should be done in the way of relief, conferred with city officials, Red Cross directors and military authorities, and indicated that he would issue an appeal for personal contributions to the community as well as ask the state to set aside funds for the work of rebuilding. However, the kind hearted did not await an official request. All day yesterday a constant stream of automobiles poured into the nearest towns, offering food and money to relieve the homeless and today checks were beginning to arrive from all sections.

Without light or gas, stricken with the great calamity, Lorain's homes were cheerless. Caravans of trucks carrying supplies wended their way over crowded roads to the town yesterday and sandwiches and hot coffee served to the workers and homeless.

Pitiful scenes at the improvised morgues, enacted many times yesterday were going re-enacted today, as people sought missing members of their families. In most instances, however, they did not round their loved ones as but two bodies, those of an unidentified man of 60 or more years and a man of 25 remained. Only when the ruins as yet unexplored give up their secrets, will the exact extent of the tragedy be revealed.

HOT WEATHER SERVICE HAD ITS BEGINNING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 30.—Because one farmer who was also a college professor, called up the weather bureau to find out what the chances were for rain before beginning his hay harvest, there is in operation in New York state this summer a system whereby every farmer can get weather advice on harvesting.

This farmer was Dr. G. F. Warren, head of the department of farm management of the college of agriculture here. Dr. W. M. Wilson, head of the Ithaca weather bureau, explained today how the harvest forecasting started.

"Several years ago," explained Dr. Wilson, "Professor Warren, who operates a large general farm near Ithaca, began the practice of calling the weather bureau office daily by 'phone to see if the weather conditions were favorable for cutting hay. He insisted that the forecast cover as long a period as possible, and that it include an opinion or estimate, on a percentage basis, of the risk he would run in planning his work according to the forecast. He found this special information so helpful that he urged that this sort of service be extended to farmers generally.

"During the following, two seasons this kind of service was made available to farmers having telephone connection with the Ithaca Weather Bureau office, and reports as to its value generally confirmed the experience of Professor Warren.

"During the past two seasons harvest weather forecasts have been telegraphed to the county agents in some twenty counties for such distribution to farmers as was possible. In one county, by the use of party lines, practically every farmer having a 'phone received the service. A vote, taken by 'phone at the end of the season, was unanimous for its continuance.

"In another county, a ballot arranged for at the county fair showed the same result, while in another county it was estimated that the farmers of the county made a saving of $25,000, through the increased value of the hay crop alone, as a result of a general use of the service.

"The weather bureau office at Ithaca has on file about 100 letters from farmers who have used the service the past two years. All agree that it is helpful in harvest operations."

Things to Know About Buying Lace Edgings

There is nothing daintier than a bit of lace edging for trimming your undergarments. By its use, you avoid any overornateness which lace insertion might give, and at the same time give your lingerie a look of femininity.

Before you attempt to buy lace edging, you should, of course, be able to distinguish it from the other kinds of laces. Lace edging has one straight edge and one scalloped edge—where insertion and beading both have two straight edges. Insertion is used between two edges of cloth, between two strips of lace or insertion or with beading. Beading you will know by its openings, large enough to permit ribbon to run through it. Edging, of course, is purely ornamental.

In buying lace edging, be sure that the straight side is finished with a strong thread that is not broken anywhere. See that the pattern is joined together firmly, and beware of fine threads that are likely to break in a short time. Choose a quality similar to that of the material on which you intend to use it. The best beading, you will find, is always made with firm, even threads, and the threads forming the openings are fastened tightly to the threads forming the edges. The lace edgings that have the least number of picots used in finishing the scalloped edge launder best. A picot, as you probably know, is a tiny loop on the edge of the lace scallop.

Edging that is about one-half inch wide will, as a rule, make the daintiest edging for undergarments, when beading is to be used with it. If it is to be used alone, a wider type of edging may be effective. But above all, do not get edging that is narrower than your beading. And remember that too much lace, or lace that is too wide, will spoil the appearance of your garments.

Women Still Can Find Many Uses for Ammonia

More and more the woman of today is finding out that her grandmother was not far wrong in her claim that ammonia was useful for keeping the home a sweet, clean place, with little trouble and expense.

Ammonia reliably prepared has wonderful power to cleanse and make sanitary yet it is simple and safe to use It is a great help in dishwashing. It dissolves grease like magic, and makes glass and china fairly shine. And for generations, women have known the power in ammonia to make clothes whiter with less work.

Ammonia has definite fertilizing value. A few drops occasionally put in the water when watering plants will make them grow. It is a thorough remedy to rid the house of vermin and other pests. It is a water-softener, and may be used in the bath. It is fine too, for cleansing the tub.

Tailored Frock Ideas of Interest to Women

In discussing the tailored frock and its place in the mode several varieties are defined and a list of accessories that should go with each is given.

The so-called "garconne frock" is good for the slender woman who wishes to look trim and boyish. It is as simple as its name implies, straight in line, one-piece, beltless, or two-piece with a tunic. There are other tailored modes, less youthful, that suggest the coatfrock of last year.

The fabrics are mannish materials with small checks or narrow line plaids, which are especially good for youthful models, and rep, alpaca, soft woolens, covert and satin. Black, black with white and black with red are favorite colors.

Shoes are pumps of patent leather or lizard or are trimmed with lizard.

Big Convention Of Auto Owners

Biggest Meeting to Open at Detroit —Made Possible Through Consolidation of New York Associations —Matters to be Discussed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Plans for holding what is expected to be in number of delegates, enthusiasm and achievement the greatest meeting of motor car owners since the inception of the automobile, have been completed, according to a bulletin just issued here by the national headquarters of the new American Automobile Association.

This meeting of which so much is expected will be the first convention of the old A. A. A. and N. M. A. since consolidation of the two great national bodies was affected and will mark the beginning of the twenty-third year of existence of the first named organization.

July 7 and 8 have been named convention dates and the Hotel Statler, Detroit, the place. More than 600 delegates, representing motor organizations situated in every section of the United States, will attend, it is reported.

This condition is made possible, the bulletin points out, through the recent consolidation of the New York State Automobile Association and the New York Motor Federation. Inspired by the example set when the A. A. A. and N. M. A. decided to recognize the folly of fighting and consolidating, it is said, leaders of the Empire State clubs brought about a result that will benefit not only the huge army of motorists who reside in New York but also the countless procession of tourists who pass through the state.

There will be a thorough threshing out of such matters as roads building and roads legislation; uniform traffic laws, emergency road aid for members wherever they may be, improved system of map making and highway charting, traffic regulation, parking, taxation, gasoline prices and all the other subjects so close to the heart of the man who wants to get the greatest comfort and service out of his motor car at a minimum of expense.

CUT ARTERY IN FOOT WHILE BATHING.

Miss Estelle Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robinson of Washburn Terrace, Saugerties, suffered severe injury when she cut two arteries and the tendon in her right foot on a piece of glass while bathing in the Esopus creek at Saugerties late Saturday afternoon and might have bled to death if Edward Kochler of Oak Ledge Park had not came along and made a tourniquet, stopping the flow of blood. Dr. B. W. Gifford of Saugerties was called and treated Miss Robinson, several stitches being necessary to close the large wound.

The Married Man

A married man falling into misfortune is more apt to retrieve his situation in the world than a single one, chiefly because his spirits are soothed and retrieved by domestic endearments, and his self-respect kept alive by finding that although all abroad be darkness and humiliation, yet there is a little world of love at home over which he is a monarch.—Jeremy Taylor.

HONORS FOR LESSON TEACHING SAFETY HABITS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washingon, D. C., June 30.—For the third consecutive year Mount Vernon schools again win state honors in the national safety campaign, it has just been announced by the Highway Education Board. Vernon, wins first prize in her state for her essay on "Highway Safety Habits I Should Learn," and has received a gold medal and a check for fifteen dollars, while her paper is now to be entered in competition for one of three national prizes, first, a gold watch and a trip to Washington; second and third, gold watches. Erma Scott, Oak Street School, Binghamton, won second prize, and has received a silver medal and a check for ten dollars.

DEPENDENT NEW YORK.

Americans in the habit or regarding the island of Manhattan as the seat of predatory wealth perhaps seldom reflect that New York, including Wall street, has at least a selfish reason for desiring the prosperity of the whole country and every part of it. As the commercial center, New York is more dependent on the general prosperity than any other city and consequently more concerned when industry or agriculture suffers in any part of the country. A politician having referred to the metropolis by the Hudson as "the citadel of privilege," the New York Times, in its comment, brings out a point overlooked—as follows:

If it were true that New York lies in wait to plunder and ruin the rest of the country, the city ought to be pictured not as a monster of iniquity but as a consummate fool. Its very life blood is the prosperity and well-being of the whole land. Doubtless it is here, where the ebb and flow of trade are most closely marked, where the subtle influences that affect trade and manufacture and transportation are most carefully studied, where a shock to even the extremities of the financial system is instantly and severely felt, that there is the greatest apprehension when upsetting and destructive policies are advocated by public men or by political parties. But it is an apprehension which extends far beyond the limits of the city and embraces the entire nation. We are all members one of another, and what hurts one part of the country hurts the rest.

MAUGHAN'S FEAT.

A new and notable cross-continent airplane record has been made. On June 23, Lieutenant Maughan flew from New York, or Long Island, to San Francisco, between dawn and dusk. The actual time and distance would seem to be uncertainly known, for one account reports 2,670 miles in 21 hours and 48 minutes, while another reports 2,850 miles in 18 and a half hours at the average speed of 156.20 miles an hour. Whatever the exact figures, the achievement was unquestionably marvelous. Who would have believed it possible twenty years, ten years, even one year, ago? Who would have predicted that by July, 1924, San Francisco could be reached by letter from New York in about 34 hours?

It has been well said that Lieutenant Maughan is himself as wonderful a machine as the special Curtiss plane which he piloted. From dawn to dusk his brain was ever alert, the tension of his nervous forces could never be relaxed, not for a moment could he yield to fatigue as he sped over mountain and plain, although the roar of his motor beat unceasingly upon his ear drums. How could any man endure such a strain? No wonder that Maughan, after keying himself to such effort and keeping an invincibly determined grip and watch upon himself as well as upon his work through the long hours from dawn to dusk, was at first unable to speak when he landed at his journey's end and knew that glory had been won. If there have been doubts, the country is convinced now that the Army Air Service is developing the art and producing wonderful birdmen.

ANOTHER BIRD SANCTUARY.

Another game preserve, or bird sanctuary, is provided by the gift of 26,000 acres of marsh land in Louisiana to the National Association of Audubon Societies. This great tract of marsh land, given by Mrs. Rogers as a memorial to her brother, the late Paul J. Rainey, is part of one of the most extensive winter resorts for water fowl. It is near the Marsh Island game refuge of about 80,000 acres presented by the Russell Sage estate, not far from the 85,000 acres given by the Rockefeller Foundation, and brings the total dimensions of game refuges in southern Louisiana up to about 350,000 acres. Though practically useless for agriculture or other commercial purposes, these marsh lands furnish shelter to both fur-bearing animals and birds, ducks, geese and water birds in general being the chief beneficiaries. So far as possible hunters will be kept out of the Louisiana marsh preserves, and provision is made to insure an adequate supply of food. With the new Rainey memorial is given an endowment to keep the region with wild rice and other bird foods.

The game refuges throughout the country are increasing in number. Already there are in the neighborhood of eighteen million acres of land set aside in the different states, in addition to the Federal and State forest lands which also offer shelter to wild life. The great acreage of marsh land preserve in Louisiana is the more welcome to conservationists because water birds have suffered seriously in the past quarter of a century as a result of the large amount of drainage with a view to increase the acreage of farm land. This accounts for the Migratory Bird Refuge bill introduced in the last session of Congress, a bill which is said to have made progress but is still pending.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

SUMMER COMPLAINT.

The summertime brings its blessings with all that the outdoor life means to that body of yours.

But it also brings along a distressing ailment which you call diarrhoea.

There seems to be a general idea abroad that because the weather is warm in the summer, that the drinking of too much water is the cause of the trouble.

Now while it is admitted that ice cold water into a hot stomach can cause diarrhoea, nevertheless it is not the water itself, but the shock, that causes the waves along the intestine.

If, however, the water itself is not pure, then it will act just like any other liquid that has decomposed. The poisonous matter irritates the side walls of the intestine and causes the pain and excessive flow of the watery contents of the blood.

Some foods seem to irritate more than others, particularly the coarser varieties.

The action of unripe fruits seem to set up a chemical change and the resultant product in turn irritates the intestine.

Fish that are not fresh, or out of season, decompose rapidly inside the body, and you have practically a poisonous condition therefrom.

Some of the concoctions you put into you in the summer may have milk that is stale. Or perhaps the ice cream, or the cream in cakes is just a bit "off."

Of course there are cases due to sudden fright, or fear, or other emotional disturbances.

Some folks wear a wide band around the waist, claiming that a chill across the abdomen always brings on an attack.

And the treatment.

The mothers of bygone years had the right idea when they administered a good stiff dose of castor oil.

The "theorisst", their children, always objected, pointing out that as the intestine was certainly active enough, why irritate it further.

But the idea of castor oil or other evacuant at this time is to remove the cause completely from the intestine.

The next step is to give the entire canal a complete rest, and so no food whatever should be taken for a day or two.

You'll feel somewhat weak but you'll live through it all right.

Milk is rather a risky thing with which to begin nourishment, because it is so hard to know whether or not it is fresh or has been pasteurized.

It is not considered wise to take opium in the ordinary attacks of diarrhoea.

You should come back to ordinary foods gradually.

You must of course be careful that constipation does not follow, and so olive oil, or the mineral oils, or the old fashioned injection would be good treatment.

Rest in bed is essential to ensure a rapid recovery of strength.

Dance for Roads at Crosspatch

Proceeds of Fourth of July Dance Will be Used to Keep Roads in Good Condition — Improvements Already Made.

Crosspatch Community House is preparing for a very pleasant Fourth of July celebration, with dancing and fireworks in the evening and open house all day to visitors.

The young people of the vicinity are planning an informal sports program for the afternoon. There is a fifty foot flag pole to be set and it has been suggested that several athletes try their strength at that. The natural lay of the land is good for an obstacle race. The briar patch back of Crosspatch barn is the turning point and many an ambitious racer has come to grief there, although Rip Van Winkle is sure he could do it and win the prize.

Rip was down at Silver Hollow brook catching a few nice speckled trout last Sunday when he got the surprise of his life. Will Gauld drove down in his Dodge car from the Community House, right to the old pole bridge. Very few horses attempt that steep road, so Rip was much startled. "I hung on the back and I'll tell the world he drove back the whole way without a stop," chuckled Rip—by which one may see that Rip is getting very gay in his old age, using slang and taking daredevil auto rides.

In fact Rip broadly hints that he could use a sturdy old flivver and "wanted to know if we couldn't give a party to buy him one," but he was told that all the proceeds of parties like that of July 4 will go to the improvement of the road from Willow.

That road is in very good shape now and Kingston friends can use their cars with no fear of getting stalled or injuring them. Harvey Ostrander has put in eight wooden bridges between Sagendorf hill and the Community House and the guests to the party last Saturday evening were agreeably surprised to see what a fine road they now have. Commissioner Jones really extended himself to clean out the ditches and make a good road bed. If the 4th of July party shows a surplus, that will be put into a regular road fund so someone can go over the bad spots regularly and keep everything in good shape.

At the 4th of July party there will be a prize to the most graceful fox trotters and waltzers and also to the couple which performs the figures of the square dance most expertly—Crosspatch is one of the few places where the quadrille or square dance is still to be seen in all its glory. Violin and accordion play "Turkey in the Straw" of "Pop Goes the Weasel" or "Captain Jinks," and Victor Rose calls off the figures, occasionally varying by call "Grapevine twist" of "Chase the squirrel" and "Grand right and left" and "Meet your partner with a railroad swing." Late in the evening they many even "Do it again, again for old Ma'am Flinnigan." This means going through every figure twice and even the most ardent dancer is apt to rettire to the punch table for rest and refreshment after that.

The punch is strictly 18th amendment, only livened by ginger ale, but it is very popular. Wild strawberries will contribute their fragrance to it at the 4th of July party.

Nearly all the young people around Willow are fox trotters, waltzers and finale hoppers. The phonograph is used for these dances. Charles Dorn has donated fifteen of the very latest jazz records for 4th of July.

Quite a number of visitors are expected from New York and it is thought one or two may give exhibition dances.

Only ice cream and punch and soft drinks will be served on July 4. The usual supper will be dispensed with as the church ladies at Willow are giving a supper and Crosspatch always likes to help the good work along.

WARNING AGAINST DANGEROUS FIRE BALLOONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 30.—William G. Howard, Assistant Superintendent of State Forests of the New York State Conservation Commission, has sent a letter to all district rangers and rangers in fire towns of this state, calling their attention to the fact that the sending up of unpiloted hot air balloons in any fire town or in any town adjacent to a fire town is a violation of the Conservation Law, and directing them to use effective preventive measures. In his letter he said:

"Your attention is called at this time to the fact that the sending up of unpiloted hot air balloons in any fire town or in any town adjacent to a fire town, is prohibited by Subdivision 4 of Section 54 of the Conservation Law.

"Please circulate this information widely in your districts and see particularly that any committee in charge of a village or town Fourth of July celebration is fully informed, in order that they may not purchase a large quantity of fire balloons in ignorance of the provisions of the law.

"Any case of fire balloons sent up on the Fourth of July should be promptly reported as a violation on Forestry Form 30."

When a watch is a watch

A WATCH is nothing more than metal until it is used to tell time. Any convenience—even though master-minds contrived it—is meaningless until used.

Advertisements urge this use. They tell you of improvements planned for your greater comfort. They suggest new things to eat, to wear, to put in your home—devices that may prove as indispensable as watches, once you have used them.

Nor are suggestions all. The advertisements list wares that are guaranteed to please. When you buy advertised goods, you buy honest values.

New York Specialist

OPPOSES THE WILD CRAZE FOR SURGERY

Many operations are made every day that could be avoided by having proper treatment. No one should consent to have surgical operations unless every other method has been tried to cure the trouble.

Dr. Swinburne, Specialist

Who is Strongly Opposed to the wild craze for surgical operations.

COMES TO KINGSTON

Every Wednesday and Will Examine All Cases Free at 163 Clinton Ave., near St. James St., from 9 a. m. to 12 and 1 to 5 and 7 to 8 p. m.

RELIEF WITHOUT SURGERY

A young lady was supposed to be suffering from gall stones, and one surgeon claimed it was appendicitis. Four doctors, two of whom were prominent surgeons, had advised this patient that an operation was absolutely necessary. A thorough examination proved it was not a case of gall stones nor appendicitis, but one of obstruction of the bile ducts from catarrhal inflammation and impaction of the gall bladder. Treatment was given immediately which removed the obstruction and reduced the inflammation and in a few days the patient was entirely relieved of all suffering and has since made a complete recovery.

TO RESTORE A HEALTHY STOMACH WILL HELP MANY OTHER DISEASES.

In nine-tenths of the ailments there is some weakness of the stomach and poor assimilation of foods that has caused the more serious disturbance. If you have already developed other disease conditions such as headache, recurring vomiting spells, gall stones, jaundice or the more distressing disorders of malnutrition, neuritis, neurasthenia, rheumatism or heart weakness, you should at once begin a course of treatment to build up digestive and assimilative functions and the results from such treatment is often astonishing.

If you are suffering from any chronic or obscure disease, you should call to see the doctor, for there will be no charge unless you want treatment.

Doctor's next visit to 163 Clinton Ave., Kingston, on Wednesday, July 2nd, from 9 a. m. to 12 m.; 1 p. m. to 5 p. m.; 6:30 to 8 p. m.

Right Storing Of Clothing

Careful Cleaning, Mending, Thorough Airing and Proper Wrapping Necessary to Keep Garments Properly.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 30.—As winter clothes go into summer retirement, many things need be done if they are to come out in good shape, suggest home economists at the state college of agriculture here.

First, all places that need repairing should be mended; buttons should be sewed on, as they may be lost if held over the summer. The garment should be thoroughly dusted and aired, by hanging outdoors in the bright sunlight. All soil spots should be removed, or if the garment permits, it should be washed. Suits and coats may well be sent to the cleaner before they are put away.

The article must be folded carefully, preferably with rolls of paper placed along the creases. This keeps it from creasing badly and therefore it is more easily put into shape when taken out. Folds and plaits may be basted in place before wrapping. Then it is wrapped carefully in newspaper and tied, and then wrapped and tied the second time as a double protection against moths. Or the package may be pasted shut with strips of cloth or paper.

All winter clothing should be stored in a dry, cool place. Chests, drawers, and boxes of cedar are of great value, since the odor of the cedar will keep moths away, and the articles need not be wrapped. Since cedar does not kill moths, it is necessary to see that each garment is entirely free from the insects before it is put in the chest.

A POPULAR DRESS FOR THE HOLIDAYS

(By Eleanor Gunn).

The week-end originally an English institution, and elongated there out of all proportion to what the term implies, has developed the same tendencies in America. Independence Day, coming conveniently at the end of the week, make it possible for many to extend their week-end, and this, of course, brings about the necessity of crowding more clothes into the week-end bag.

A lace dress fortunately does not take up much room. What is more, they are the very latest evening gowns, and while some of them run into a considerable figure, fashion does not judge a gown by the value of its lace. It is judged rather by the effectiveness; in other words, it is measured by the same yard stick as costume jewelry. Lace is used in many ways. In some instances it is applied in applique effect; in others, as a series of wide bands; in ruffles, of course, some of which are pleated, and in deep flounces which may or may not be applied to a heading of silk or chiffon. Straight-line tunics are posible over metal cloth or satin slips, absurdly simple sleeveless affairs which depend on the charm of their coloring and the delicate quality of the lace for their charm.

While white lace has some prestige, it is decidedly second choice, the preference being accorded dyed lace in shades of beige or cafe-au-lait, gray, flesh or banana. The combination of black with ecru or beige lace is very much worn, while many crepe dresses, lace-trimmed, have the lace dyed to match the crepe, no matter what that color may be.

Irish crochet bands are very well liked for trimming straightline crepe dressse, not too elaborate for afternoon wear, and which frequently have crochet buttons, dangling in a straightline from neck to hem.

In using lace flouncing which is the entire width of the skirt, it is a pretty fashion to have the lace opened at the front, thus avoiding the necessity of a seam.

This gives a panel suggestion, also desirable fullness, or one may have wide ribbon with loops at the waistline, as in the sketch, or many streamrs of narrow ribbon, should one prefer. Since many very chic French frocks have a bow of wide ribbon—or rather ends—falling from stunning loops placed directly at the front, it seems newer than the narrow ribbons which have already had considerable vogue.

AIDS DISABLED MEN AND THEIR FRIENDS

A ministering angel is actually thought of as a Red Cross nurse, a Sister of Mercy, or some woman who gives unstinted service. But in J. G. Jeckering, a Knight of Columbus secretary at the National Military home in Dayton, Ohio, disabled veterans of the World war believe they have found the male variety.

Jeckering, who was a sergeant-major of artillery during the World war, took up K. of C. work almost immediately following his return from service. Much of that time he has been stationed at the Dayton home, where scores of World war soldiers are now receiving care.

His work daily brings him to the bedside of disabled men, to whom he administers comforts and performs the little duties that mean so much to the disabled man. In addition to these duties, Jeckering finds time to visit the unfortunate veterans in jails and penitentiaries, looking after the burials and funeral arrangements of those who die away from home, and cheering the bereaved ones by comforting words as to their loved ones and their last moments

J. G. Jeckering.

In district work for the American Legion, Jeckering takes a prominent part. He is a member of the Legion welfare committee of the state, and is serving a term on district Americanization committee.

When the Knights of Columbus in Dayton recently unveiled a memorial tablet to World war veterans, as a World war memorial in that city, National Commander John R. Quinn of the American Legion was present to deliver the principal address He was secured principally through the efforts of Jeckering, who handled many of the arrangements for the unveiling ceremony.

Interesting Relics in Pennsy. Post Library

The library of the Frankfort (Pa.) post of the American Legion is one of the most interesting collections to be found in the state More than 1,400 books are available. But the historical relics of the post are of principal interest. The first American flag to go over the top during the World war, presented to the post by Edward Holden, honorary colonel of the One Hundred and Sixty eighth infantry battalion of Woodstock, Canada, is one of the prized possessions Other valuable relics are an American ambulance flag, used in Italy during the war, a flag that was used in the centennial celebration in Philadelphia in 1876, and a Texas state flag captured at the battle of Gettysburg.

"See America" Journey to End at Convention

A group of Legionnaires of Shamokin, Pa., make the annual pilgrimage to the national convention city an opportunity to "See America First."

When the Pennsylvanians arrive in St. Paul this year, they will have completed a long circle tour through the Canadian Rockies, to the Pacific coast, Yellowstone park, Pike's peak and other points of interest in the West. Two pullmans will be necessary to care for the tourists on the trip, which will cover about 25 days. The trip will end at St. Paul in time for the national convention.

Committee Named to Investigate Radicals

A secret committee to investigate activities of alleged radicals has been appointed from members of the Wyandotte post of the American Legion in Kansas City, Mo., post officials say. This committee is expected to co-operate with the Department of Justice, and some work is already outlined. The committee is the result of activity of certain elements in Kansas City, Kan., and press reports of a national movement for pacifism.

LEGION'S INFLUENCE

By N. S. SINNOTT, United States Representative From Oregon.

THE American Legion is here to stay. It has a patriotic mission in our private and public life. It is fulfilling that mission well, and will ever be an important factor in inculcating a deeper love for our country and its institutions Composed of the best and most patriotic of our young manhood, who demonstrated their patriotism and willingness to sacrifice their lives in war; in peace, the same promptings of patriotism will ever make them zealous for their country's welfare. I know that congress gives careful consideration and weight to the views of the Legion This is attested by the fact that much of the legislation passed by congress for the ex-service men, land laws, care and hospitalization for the disabled, was passed in compliance with the request of the American Legion.

KANSAS' BONUS LAW HOLDS UP MEMORIAL

Red tape confronting members of the American Legion in Great Bend, Kan., may defer erection of a memorial to Allwyn Harrison, a Barton county veteran for a short time, but the Legion will build a monument to this man who lost his life in the World war.

Under the Kansas bonus law, Harrison's heirs are entitled to his bonus. His parents are dead, and he had no brothers and sisters; only several uncles and aunts are living, all of whom are entitled to a share of the compensation.

These heirs suggested that a monument be erected in the boy's memory, and all made assignments of their share to the Legion. This was agreeable until the Kansas board got the case. The law specifically says that the bonus cannot be assigned to any purpose except for support of wife or children. As a result the bonus board will be required to make out 15 different checks to pay each of the heirs the small share of the claim they are to receive. Then the Legion must arrange to get these checks indorsed and paid into a fund for the memorial for the young man.

Needy German Soldier Cared for by Legion

At Chateau Thierry, with Americans too close for comfort, Herman Schmidt, a German soldier, suffered a shattered leg from the explosion of a shell. A few months ago Schmidt went to Chicago, where relatives obtained work for him in a grocery, but the old wound gave him considerable pain.

Schmidt kept his trouble to himself, imagining if it were known that he had been a German soldier members of the American Legion would have him deported. Infection set in and the man's life was endangered, so despite his protests a brother told a neighbor, a member of the American Legion.

The next day members of the Legion again surrounded Schmidt, but this time their presence was a comfort to him, as they carried him to an ambulance and sent him to a hospital Now Schmidt regards his former enemies as men of human qualities, and the Legion as a ministering angel.

Iowa Flag Decoration Plan Given Approval

The Shenandoah plan of uniform flag decoration, originated in Iowa by a member of the American Legion auxiliary, is rapidly spreading to all sections of the country. This plan calls for placing of an iron receptacle in the sidewalks of the business districts of cities at regular intervals in which flagstaffs of equal height are inserted and from which emblems of exact size are flown. The plan was first tried in Shenandoah, Iowa, and reports now indicate that it is in use in Florida, California, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, the Dakotas and other states as well as in the state of its origin.

Texas Post Offers to Help Houston Mayor

Services of members of Dismuke post of the American Legion in Houston, Tex., have been proffered to Mayor Holcombe of that city by post officials to aid in fighting fires or in helping to apprehend "firebugs."

The offer was made following an epidemic of fires in the city, many of which are suspected to have been of incendiary origin. Firemen have been kept busy answering these calls

Splash Pool Is Donated to City by Idaho Post

A splash pool for the children of Emmett, Idaho, has been donated to the city by the local American Legion post. The pool was constructed in a city park, but all expense was borne by the Legion members, who expect return of some funds from operation of park concessions during summer months. First work was done by a group of Legionnaires, to whom luncheon was served by women of the auxiliary.

Tories Went to Canada

The descendants of the United Empire Loyalists form a very important section of the inhabitants of the Dominion of Canada. The Loyalists (subjects of the British crown) left the United States at the close of the War of Independence and sought and obtained a home in Canada under the British flag. The majority of the U. E. L. settled in Upper Canada (now Ontario) and the Maritime provinces.

MRS. COW'S THOUGHTS

"Moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.

"Moo, moo," said Miss Cow.

"I've been thinking," said Mrs. Cow.

"Goodness me, moo, moo, did it hurt you?" asked Miss Cow.

"No," said Mrs. Cow, not minding the insult at all. In fact she hardly thought of it as an insult.

"But I'd feel better if I told you what I was thinking about for I don't want my thoughts to stay running around in my head without any chance to get out and be expressed."

"Well, that is grand talking," said Miss Cow.

"Moo, moo," she added after a time, "that is grand talking."

There was another pause and Miss Cow said:

"Ah yes, tell me your thoughts."

So Mrs. Cow sat down by Miss Cow who was already sitting in a corner of the pasture.

"My dear Cow," said Mrs. Cow, "I was thinking that some animals and some people are very jolly. They laugh and scamper about and if they're dogs they wag their tails.

"If they are people they giggle and laugh, and they run here and there or dance or jump or make merry in one way or another.

"But we're not really very jolly. We don't run and laugh. We don't do anything very funny ourselves.

"We're not very full of jokes or anything like that.

"We're not small and dainty either. We sometimes make pets for the children but we're not really and truly pets.

"You can't take a cow in your lap if you're a boy or a girl such as a dog or a cat can be taken into the lap.

"No one could possibly take you, Miss Cow, or myself, and lift either of us into his lap and rock us to and fro.

"It would simply be impossible.

"But at the same time we're happy and pleased to be in the pasture.

"It's nice out here and we sleep out here and enjoy the air and the good things to eat and the stream.

"Only I couldn't help thinking how different we were from those who could be jolly at times if they wanted to be or funny.

"We can't do such things. And I was thinking that a cow hasn't all the opportunities some have.

"In a way it is hard to be a cow, yet I wouldn't want to be anything else.

"I wouldn't want to be considered funny because then I would be expected to make funny remarks—and goodness, the strain on my cow mind would be something terrific.

"I just couldn't stand it.

"Or if I was expected to be jolly and had to go dancing and prancing about the meadow I wouldn't like that at all.

"Yes, I was thinking that it in a way it was hard to be a cow and yet I wouldn't want to be anything else."

"I agree with those thoughts of yours," said Miss Cow.

"Moo, moo," she added as she looked slowly at Mrs. Cow's calm, placid face, "I agree with those thoughts of yours, I do. Moo, moo."

SUMMER DRINKS

Cooling drinks are most refreshing during the warm summer days. The most healthful temperature is not too icy. Place the drinks on the ice and, when serving, add only small portions of shaved ice.

Glasses are of various sizes and shapes for serving different drinks, but when of clear glass they should be polished carefully to add to the pleasure of the drink.

Ginger ale and carbonated waters may be kept on hand to add to various drinks. A few tablespoonfuls of ginger ale added to a glass of grape juice is especially refreshing.

There are drinks that stimulate; there are those that nourish and there are those that simply refresh and cool the body.

Milk drinks combined with chocolate and eggs are a food in themselves. Lemonade or orangeade, with egg added, makes a nourishing as well as a refreshing drink

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

CLAUDE DE RECTOR.

Claude de Rector was the abbess of St. Honore de Tarascon and was eminent for her great knowledge and style of writing. She gave early indications of genius, and a monk, Denis Fauchier, undertook the care of her education, and in time she equalled the most learned men of her age. Her latin and French poems and essays have been classed with those of the ancient philosophers.

Francis I, king of France, was so charmed with her letters that he carried them about with him, showing them as models worthy of imitation. He went with his sister, Margaret of Navarre, to visit the abbess at Tarascon. She died in 1574.

RAILROADS IN CHINA.

The first railroad in China, from Shanghai to Woosung, 11 miles, was publicly opened 48 years ago today. The puffing locomotives aroused great fear and consternation among the natives, and the line had to be constantly guarded to prevent the tearing up the tracks.

In fact, so great was the public clamor that the public bought the road, intending to destroy it, but their decision was reversed and its operation resumed in 1877. In the following year, however, the tracks were torn up and all the portable property of the pioneer Chinese railway was removed to Formosa. In a few years other short lines were constructed and opposition to the innovation gradually died out and 27 years after the opening of the first 11 mile railway, China had (in 1903) thousands of miles of modern railroad in opration, another thousand miles was soon after completed, and many more projected.

OKLAHOMA.

Today Oklahomans will celebrate the 90th anniversary of the formation of Indian Territory, which event was the real beginning of Oklahoma. The Cherokees were removed to the future prosperous state in 1835, and were soon followed by the Choctaws, Creeks, Chickasaws and Seminoles. These constituted the five civilized tribes who laid the foundation for the prosperity of the Oklahoma of the future, and very many of their descendants have become wealthy and influential citizens. The territory was included in the Louisiana purchase of 1803, but the Indians were the first permanent settlers. In addition to the five civilized tribes other Indians including Sacs, Foxes, Comaches, Modocs, Nez Perces and smaller tribes were given lands in the territory. In 1866 the Creeks ceded the western part of their territory, and the Seminoles all of theirs to the United States, and these were incorporated with No Man's Land into the Territory of Oklahoma a quarter of a century ago. Indian Territory was maintained a separate government under the original form until 1906, when it was incorporated with Oklahoma and admitted as a state of the union.

What Becomes of Foster Children

Investigation Shows Three-quarters "Made Good"—One-eighth Harmless To Society—Balance Need State Protection.

The question of what kind of men and women placed-out children become, was answered by Miss Sophie van S. Theis of New York in an address before the National Conference of Social Work at Toronto this week. She said that 77 per cent of them, even those who began life with a bad start but were later placed in family homes, make good.

Miss Theis' address was based on a study just completed by the New York State Charities Aid Association. "For the past two years," said Miss Theis, "the Association has been making a critical study and analysis of 910 individuals out of 3,500 placed in foster homes by the Association, and who are now 18 years old and over. One-quarter of the 910 children were foundlings, picked from hallways or park benches and whose family history was wholly unknown.

"The study shows that 615 of the 910 children studied are now able to manage themselves and their affairs with ordinary prudence. They are law-abiding and manage their affairs with good sense, are capable of self-support and are living in accordance with the moral standards of the community. That is, 77.2 of them turned out to be decent, law-abiding citizens, respected in their communities. The other 22.8 range from those who are harmless to those who are actively harmful, incapable of meeting the ordinary demands of self-support and personal and community obligations.

"In other words, slightly more than three-fourths of all the children have 'made good.' This is said without taking into consideration the age at which he was taken from his own home or the kind of family from which he came, nor was the kind of foster family with whom he lived and the amount of education given, considered in evaluating accomplishment. Some of these so-called 'capable' subjects are still in schools or colleges; some have children of their own now nearly grown up; the vast majority of them, however, are the young men and women between 18 and 25 who are beginning on their careers, meeting their personal problems reasonably satisfactorily, and taking an active and responsible part in the community's activities, some of them giving promise of leadership but most of them in the rank and file of steady and productive workers. Of the other fourth, of those graded as incapable, one-half are harmless people who are neither clearly an asset nor a total loss to a community; the remainder of the group need the protection of a state or private institution or are definitely at odds with the accepted standards of law and order."

Summer School At School No. 7

A summer school will be conducted for grammar school students at School No. 7, provided a class of 15 desires tuition. Superintendent Michael and Principal Van Ingen of the Kingston high school will prepare a test to be given at the end of six weeks. All students attaining the required standing will be admitted to the high school in September.

The course at the summer school will follow the regents' outline and will give work equivalent to twelve weeks in the grades. For two years the school has been conducted very successfully. Every student made the test in the school and entered the high school at the beginning of the school year. This is a splendid opportunity for students, who failed in the recent regents' examinations, also for those who wish extra tuition. Principal A. H. Russell will have charge of the work.

BEAT UP ULSTER LANDING RESIDENT.

State Troopers Vandecar and Metzger, stationed near Kingston, on Saturday arrested Henry Tewis of Buffalo and Harry Schaeffer of Ulster Landing, a carpenter employed near that place, charging them with assault in the third degree. It was alleged that on Friday evening at 6 o'clock the two men assaulted and badly battered Samuel A. Naugel of Brooklyn, who recently purchased a farm at Ulster Landing, badly blackening both optics, breaking his nose and knocking his teeth out besides dislocating his jaw. Dr. Luther Emerick of Saugerties rendered the surgical aid necessary.

A hearing was held before Police Justice Clyde F. Gardner at Saugerties Saturday afternoon and after a Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. H. Schaeffer offered testimony, they being the witnesses named, both parties told their stories. Justice Gardner discharged Tewis and fined Schaeffer $10, plus doctor's bill, which was approximately $25, and adjourned the case for a week. Tewis was on his vacation at Ulster Landing at the time of the fracas.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM WIN IN FENCING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 30.—France defeated Italy and Belgium beat Hungary in the semi-finals of the Olympic fencing matches today. The scores were, France, 3; Italy, 1; Beligium, 9; Hungary, 7.

A row broke out during the French-Italian match and the Italians abandoned the competition. A jury awarded a doubtful touch to Gaudin, of the French team, despite the protests of Boni, a member of the Italian team. The Italians withdrew singing the Fascist hymn. Later a special jury sustained the decision of the under jury.

Members of the Hungarian team appeared before the international Olympic committee and swore by the Olympic oath that all are amateurs, thus closing an incident raised by the Argentines who claimed Captain Berti, a Hungarian, is a professional.

John E. Anderson is visiting at the home of his brother-in-law, Jesse Ostrander at No. 53 Franklin street, and will not forget his visit in a hurry. Saturday night he retired to bed and was soundly sleeping when sneak thieves tore out the fly netting from the window on the first floor in the room he was occuping and reaching in removed his pair of soldier trowsers with its contents consisting of $42 in money, a valuable diamond ring and a new dollar Bristol watch. MAUTERSTOCK PUPILS GIVE FINE RECITAL

Each year the piano pupils of Miss Ethel Mauterstock give a recital at the close of the season of study. The recital given this year last Friday evening at the lecture room of the Trinity M. E. Church was considered by those who have attended former musicales given by Miss Mauterstock's pupils to be by far the best to date. All of the pupils played from memory and the program went off without the slightest hitch of any sort. The young musicians showed a fine sense of interpretation and produced a really excellent quality of tone. The program was pleasingly varied with a violin solo admirably played by Kendall Zeliff, and by pantomime and vocal selections. A unique feature of the program was the awarding of two prizes. Miss Carolyn Port received from her teacher a fountain pen for perfect attendance at lessons for four years and Miss Helen Dauner also received from Miss Mauterstock a $2.50 gold piece for perfect attendance at elocution and piano lessons for two years.

The following is the program which was fully enjoyed by a large audience on Friday evening:

Safe and Sane 4th In Kingston

Chief Chipp Suggests What May be Done to Bring About Such a Condition.

Fire Chief Chipp is anxious that Kingston shall continue in the way of safety and sanity for its observance of Independence Day this year. While admitting that he sees no reason to be more fearful of the occasion than in past years, in view of the restrictions which he intends to enforce, he nevertheless has issued a statement in which he appeals to the public not to endanger lives and property by the careless use of such fireworks and miscellaneous noise-makers as the law allows. The chief's warning reads:

"Notwithstanding the continued growth of the 'safe and sane' idea among the great majority of intelligent citizens, and the development of the more sensible community celebrations, there are still people who feel that they cannot appropriately observe the anniversary of the passage of the Declaration of Independence without resorting to fire and noise. This is proved by the fact that in the latest year of record the actuarial bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters reports the property damage due to 'fireworks, firecrackers, etc.,' at more than three-quarters of a million dollars. As a fire cause, therefore, it is by no means the least important—even after some twenty years of the 'safe and sane' campaign, which has brought about the prohibition in this and other cities of the most hazardous celebrating materials. Vast property damage is recorded every year from firecrackers and fireworks falling on inflammable roofs, under porches, in rubbish piles, or in dry grass, and so spreading.

"Furthermore, following every 'Fourth' the newspaper continue to tell of mutilations and deaths. Last year one state—and not the most populous either—had five deaths, sixteen serious injuries and sixty fires, all due to fireworks. In 1923, several small children died from poison after eating various kinds of fireworks. But, of course, most of the trouble comes from sparks and explosions resulting in loss of sight and fingers, and in ugly burns about face and hands.

"Thousands of parents who, even before the restrictions came, forbade their children to celebrate in the old-fashioned way, still allow them to play with sparklers, toy balloons and other pyrotechnics, which they believe harmless. Last year in one small town in Louisiana, however, nine little girls had their dresses ignited with sparklers, with the result that four are in their graves and the others disfigured for life. The list of similar disasters is long; for though the sparks given off may be harmless the metal core itself becomes red-hot and will easily ignite flimsy fabrics. As for the miniature balloons, they are hazardous not only while they are being released but also in the possibility of their dropping on inflammable roofs or other combustible surfaces.

"If," concludes the chief's announcement, "some display of fireworks is considered imperative in this city, let them be set off only in a properly safeguaded public function which the children can enjoy without danger and where there is no exposure to burnable property. Many a battle in the Revolutionary War, which made effective the Declaration of Independence, did not claim a tenth of the toll of human life that has been paid in a century of Fourth-of-July celebrations. Let's make this the safest, most sensible and at the same time most memorable 'Fourth' ever known in Kingston.

ITS COLUMBUS AS DISCOVERER

ew Finds Strengthen Theory That He Was Not First in America.

Washington.—The recent discovery Long Island of skeletons showing idences of great antiquity has stimlated anew the old controversy as to ho discovered America. The recent scovery is said to strengthen the se against Christopher Columbus as e real discoverer. In fact, historil science now seems to be leaning ore and mo toward the belief that nturies before Columbus was born merica had been discovered and was irly well known to Europeans.

The discovery at Malba, Long Island, ttracted especial attention because perts in anatomy said that the keletons unquestionably were those white men and not of Indians. rther, it was clear to the experts at the skeletons were at least six nturies old.

The best-known story of early Norse discovery and occupation of American oil is that told in Longfellow's poem, "The Skeleton in Armor." Longllow was familiar with the old stone wer which has stood at Newport, R. I., for so long that there is no trace its origin. It was old when the Pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth Rock. In 1831 a skeleton, clad in ancient armor, was unearthed near Fall River, Mass. The armor was of character traceable to the Norse ilization of a very early date. Longfellow connected the two relics—the tower and the armed skeleton—and wove his fantastic ballad about them.

The ancient Icelandic and Scandanavian sagas make many references to a vast land across the western ocean which, it is contended, could not be other than the American continent. It was believed to be an island of comparatively small size.

Greenland, of course, was well known and colonized centuries before the day of Columbus and the sagas seem to indicate that voyages were made down to the American mainland. This land was referred to in the old records as Vinland because of the profusion with which vines and other vegetation grew about cultivation. It will be remembered that when Sir Walter Raleigh, centuries later, made his first visit to these shores he was particularly struck by the luxuriance of the uncultivated vegetation.

Dighton Writing Rock.

"It seems natural that most of the Norse relics should be found in New England, as this would be the first territory in what is now the United States, which the vikings would strike in coming down from Greenland. Ancient implements, certainly not of Indian origin, have been plowed up in New England fields, and in Bristol county, Mass., there has been found an inscribed rock, now calle the Dighton writing rock, which bears rough lettering telling that a viking identified as Thorfinn Karlsefni, with 160 men, landed and took possession of what is now Massachusetts about the year 1007. The rock was discovered by the Puritans in 1680.

Probably the most amazing find in connection with Norse antiquities in America was that of what is known as the Kensington rune stone in 1898. It was discovered by a farmer who was engaged in grubbing up stumps on his farm near Kensington, Minn. The stone was imbedded in the roots of a tree. Its inscription has been liberally deciphered and tells how eight Goths or Swedes, and twenty-two Norsemen journeyed to that spot where they were attacked by Indians. The implication is that, while surrounded and besieged by the savages, the vikings carved the stone in the hope that some day their people would find trace of what had become of them. The amazing fact is that the stone is clearly dated "Year 1362."

Columbus' discovery of America, it will be remembered, was in 1492, a hundred and thirty years later. That a small party of vikings, accustomed only to the sea, should have gone nearly half way across the American continent seems incredible. Undoubtedly, they sailed in small craft up the Great Lakes.

Another astonishing evidence of how widespread were the explorations of the Norse on this continent is to be found in northern Georgia. Atop a mountain there has been found a pretentious fort of an antiquity which places it far earlier than the date of the Spanish explorations. The medicine men of the Cherokee Indians are declared to have told the first English settlers that long before they appeared another race of white men had held the country and built the fort on the mountain. The mountaintop is encircled by a stone wall, originally about 4 feet high and 3 feet wide. It is nearly half a mile in total length.

Even Name of Norse Origin.

In addition to the old weapons found and the tablets and stone edifices, the experts declare that there are other indications which should conclusively prove that Columbus is not entitled to the credit for the discovery of the western hemisphere which he has enjoyed so long. For many years the common teaching has been that the name America was bestowed on the continent in honor of the great Italian navigator Amerigo Vespucci, who followed Columbus and made maps and charts and wrote records of the new world.

The proponents of the Norse theory combat this idea, saying that even the name comes from a northern source.

It is claimed that Leif Ericson, a viking, made the first discovery of America about the year 1000, or nearly five centuries before Columbus came. In the Scandanavian language there is the old word "amt" which means land. It is contended that the new world would most probably be named after its discoverer, whose name was Ericson. A natural name, it is pointed out, would be Amt-Eric, of the Land of Eric. It is only necessary to ellide the latter "t" from the first syllable of the word to produce the word America as it is spelled today. This is much nearer to the present word than the Italian name Amerigo. Also, it is claimed, a land would scarcely be named after the first name of a man. The last name would more likely be used. Amerigo was Vespucci's first name. Eric or Ericson was the surname of Leif Ericson.

Much more evidence has been collected by historians and antiquarians showing that tribes of Indians called this continent America or a name of similar sound before the arrival of Columbus or before any of the early Spanish or English settlers came.

All these facts necessarily have much fascination for an American. Searches for additional information still are going forward and it seems likely that further evidence will be discovered. It is quite probable that the school books will have to be changed in the face of fresh and convincing evidence that, great as Columbus was, he was not the discoverer of the western world. The existing school books, of course, long have made mention of the early Norse voyages, but they have been treated more as uncertain and doubtful legends than as historical facts. If much more evidence accumulates, the legend theory will be displaced and the story of the viking must be accepted as the real basis of early American history.

Bricks of Molten Lava

The problem of utilizing volcanic steam in industry has been well worked out by the Italian engineers, and if we ever tackle the job in the Yellowstone park we shall enjoy the benefit of the lessons they have learned. Apparently the conditions to be met are similar; but in the Yellowstone the available supply of steam is incomparably greater, so that the "puffing holes" of the Tuscany seem relatively insignificant.

Boring for steam has been going on for more than a year near the crater of Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, but the rock is basalt and extremely hard, so that the drills have not yet penetrated very far. It is said that the scheme in that locality does not promise very well. But the Hawaiian government has consulted the Department of Commerce about a plan, seemingly practicable, for making bricks of molten lava from the Kilauea crater. It is proposed to extend a trolley across the crater, carrying an endless chain of buckets, which would scoop up the liquid lava, fetch it to the rim of the fiery hole, and pour it into the molds.—New York Times.

Soldier Well Knew Value of Good Bluff

Blaise de Montluc was a soldier and a marshal of France who fought through half the Sixteenth century. Like a true Gascon, as he was, he added to his great physical qualities courage, high spirits and an unquenchable gayety, which distinguished him among soldiers of a graver mold. He was the veritable captain of his soul.

In the Italian wars Blaise de Montluc commanded the defense of Sienna during a prolonged siege. When the town was reduced to a few ounces of bread daily Blaise was overcome with sickness and had himself carried about in a chair, muffled up in furs.

But perceiving that the inhabitants, especially the women, were "thus rendered apprehensive of their fate should he die," so runs the chronicle of the times, he called for a pair of crimson velvet breeches, laid over with gold lace, very finely cut, for they were made at a time when he was very much in love. He put on a doublet of the same and a shirt of crimson silk and gold twist, then a buff collar over which he placed his arms, very finely gilded.

He was at that time wearing gray and white, in honor of a fair. So he put on a gray silk hat, with a gray silver hatband and a plume of heron's feathers, set with silver spangles. He also put on a short cassock of gray velvet, garnished, with little plates of silver at two fingers' distance from one another and lined with cloth of silver, all open between the plates.

Then he rubbed his face with Greek wine until he brought a little color into his cheeks and drank a small draught, with a morsel of bread.

He then looked at himself in the glass, strutted before his officers, though he had not the strength to kill a chicken, and rode through the town to the great comfort of all beholders.

Squelched the Kicker

"Irish" Buttomer, a comedian of no mean merit, is playing at a local theater. But "Irish" has not always been an actor. During the heyday of the oil boom at Ranger he was fire chief, and he was a good one.

He had one attribute that amounted almost to genius. When every factor at a fire did not move as it should, listening to "Irish" would have been both entertaining and educational to an old sea dog.

A woman heard the fire chief one morning and promptly remonstrated with the fire commissioner.

"Is it necessary," she asked, "to have a fire chief who 'cusses'?"

"Lady," the commissioner answered, "if you had been home in bed at 3 o'clock in the morning where you belonged you would not have heard the chief 'cussing,' neither would you have been in the way, which probably was one cause of those oaths you complain of. Now, if I was you, I would forget it."

"Irish" continued to add a little brimstone to the blazes.—Houston Post.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Neher of West Park was the scene of a very pretty wedding ceremony on Saturday afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock, when their daughter, Zelda Elizabeth, became the bride of Robert Goss Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Adams of this city. The bride was charmingly attired in blue chiffon with cream chntilly lace. She carried lilies of the valley. Her only attendant, her sister, Mildred Neher, was gowned in pink chiffon and carried pink peas. The best man was Benjamin H. Adams, brother of the groom. The ceremony was performed under a canopy of roses and ferns by the Rev. Mr. Van Deusen. Mrs. Zillman sang "O Promise Me" during the ceremony. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served to the immediately families of the bride and groom. After a wedding trip to the White Mountains they will reside at Philadelphia where the groom is in business.

Huestis-Christiana.

On Saturday, June 28, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Christiana of Ten Broeck avenue was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when their daughter, Leona J., became the bride of Henry M. Huestis, this city. The home was tastefully decorated with ferns, mountain laurel and roses. At one o'clock, to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, played by Miss Mabel Christiana, the nuptial parties assembled under a bower of laurel, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert A. Greenwell of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. The bride was lovely in a gown of white canton crepe, wearing a veil, and carrying birdes' roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss LaVerne Palen as maid of honor, who was gowned in pale yellow crepe de chine and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids, Misses Harriet and Martha Huestis, sisters of the groom, wore gowns of delicately tinted organdie, blue and pink, respectively. They also carried roses. Archie Huestis, Jr., brother of the groom, was in attendance as best man. A reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Huestis left by automobile for a honeymoon trip to western New York and Canada. On their return they will reside in this city. Numerous friends extend good wishes.

Huelster-Fitzpatrick.

A very pretty wedding took place at nine o'clock this morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., when Helen Augusta Fitzpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Fitzpatrick of High Falls, N. Y., was married to Charles Edward Huelster, son of the Hon. and Mrs. Joseph A. Huelster of Brooklyn, N. Y. Monsignor Mallick J. Fitzpatrick of New York, formerly of this city city, an uncle of the bride, officiated at the marriage ceremony, which was followed by a nuptial high Mass with the Rev. John P. Rohleder, S. P. M., as the celebrant. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mallick Joseph Fitzpatrick, 2nd., of Brooklyn, N. Y. She was attended by Miss Helen Cecelia Huelster, a sister of the bridegroom, and the best man was Charles J. Hohner of Brooklyn, N. Y. The bride's gown was of white georgette crepe with a court train. Her tulle veil was arranged with lilies of the valley, and the bridal bouquet was June roses and lilies of the valley. The bridemaid's gown was of peach taffeta with picture hat to match. She carried lilies of the valley. The music was rendered by the members of the Arion choir, both at the church and the club. The bridegroom is a member of the Brooklyn Elks, Montauk Council, Knights of Columbus, and the Arion Club. A wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony at the Arion Club. After a honeymoon to Niagara Falls and western New York, and a brief visit to the parents of the bride in this county, Mr. and Mrs. Huelster will reside in Brooklyn, N. Y.

The DAIRY

CREAM AND MILK OF SUPERIOR QUALITY

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Because cream is sold in smaller quantities than milk is no reason why less care should be given by inspectors in insuring a safe supply of good quality, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It is just as desirable for cream to come from tuberculin-tested cows or be properly pasteurized, or both, as that milk should. Heavy cream for whipping purposes is often sold raw and its quality should be above suspicion. Cream from old or returned milk of poor quality is not desirable.

All cities need carefully defined grades for cream, according to the department, with a fixed minimum for light, table, or coffee cream, which is the usual cream of commerce. The federal standard for cream which goes into interstate or foreign commerce is 18 per cent butterfat, and in different cities it varies usually from 18 to 20 per cent. Sometimes what is known as "double cream" is sold, and when that term is used the cream should contain twice as much fat as is required in ordinary cream, usually from 36 to 40 per cent of butterfat. "Whipping cream" may contain less butterfat than "double cream," but, according to a ruling by the bureau of chemistry, cream thus labeled, if shipped, interstate, must contain at least 30 per cent butterfat.

Feeding Will Regulate Quantity of Milk Flow

The question of the richness of the milk has received much attention by experiment stations in this country and in Europe, and the evidence is conclusive that the fat percentage of the milk cannot be changed permanently by any method of feeding. Certain experiments have shown that sudden changes in the ration, for example, greatly increasing the protein or oil content of the ration, may result in a small fat increase for a few days with some cows, with others no effect is produced. In any case the results are only temporary. No ration or method of feeding has been found by means of which a Shorthorn or Holstein can be made to give milk as rich as that of a Jersey or Guernsey.

However, the feed and management does not have a marked influence on the quantity of milk produced by the cow. The amount of milk a cow produces depends upon the ability of the cow to convert feed into milk and butterfat and upon the feed and care a cow receives. No cow can be made to produce milk above her capacity, no matter what kind of feed she gets nor how much.

Calf Feed Important

Experience has taught the importance of feeding the calf milk of uniform temperature from day to day. Best results are obtained when this temperature is kept between 80 and 100 degrees Fahrenheit. A young calf should not be fed milk that has started to sour. The pail should be thoroughly cleansed after each feeding in the winter time as well as during the summer season.

Clipping for Cleaner Milk

The production of clean milk is made easier by clipping the cow's udder and the tail from the switch up. This will prevent particles of dirt heavily infected with bacteria from dropping into the pail. Another practice that will aid in keeping the milk clean is washing the udder with a moist cloth and drying it thoroughly before starting to milk.

Dairy Hints

Screen milkhouse.

Cool cream down immediately and keep cool until sold.

Place a salt box in the pasture and keep salt before the cows constantly.

Observe new pastures and plan to seed the poor grass spaces next year.

Cream separators and other dairy utensils should always be cleaned properly immediately after use.

All utensils which come in contact with milk and cream should be kept clean at all times.

• • •

Milk pails and other utensils should be free so far as is possible from crevices where dirt may lodge and be hard to remove.

The milker should always milk with clean, dry hands. It is a filthy habit, to say the least, to milk with wet hands, and it is a mistaken idea that milking with wet hands makes milking easier.

• • •

Cleanliness in milking should be exercised at all times. Before milking begins, the cow's udder and flanks should be wiped off, preferably with a damp cloth, in order to prevent particles of straw or loose hair getting into the pail.

Cutting Wall Paper

One of the most tedious tasks in wallpapering a room is to trim the selvage edges. If you hold the paper so that the light from a window or lamp will shine through from the other side you can easily follow the straight edge of the pattern with your shears. —Popular Science Monthly.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 30.—Reactionary tendencies followed the firm opening in the stock market today. The bulk of the speculative stocks, including the mercantile and copper company shares, appeared to be continuing the rally which featured last week's market, and occasional advances to higher price were in evidence.

Belief that the market was due for a technical decline after the substantial advance of last week was responsible for the increased selling orders at the end of the first hour, forcing recessions of one or two points in the market leaders.

The movement in oil stocks which started on Saturday was resumed in the second hour, and participated in by most of the active independent stocks. Prices went a little above the high levels of Saturday, Cosden going to 27⅞, Marland to 31⅝, Pan American making up one point of its dividend.

WAYS OF TELLING LOVE'S OLD STORY

Different Nations Cling to Time-Honored Customs.

Love's old story repeats itself in every clime, and weddings in other parts of the world differ from the American ceremony only in details of costumes and local customs. The tender emotions that fill the heart of a bride when she stands before the altar are the same, whether the ceremony be celebrated in China or Chicago. And Easter is a popular time for weddings the world around, the same as June.

In rural parts of Germany, instead of the conventional engraved wedding invitation, a professional messenger is employed to invite guests to the wedding. As his tall figure passes through the streets, there is an air of eager expectancy among the villagers, for it is not known to whom the magic words of invitation may come, says the San Antonio Express. The messenger announces his mission in loud, sonorous tones, then proceeds to the next house on his list.

When a young man in Austria feels matrimonially inclined, he presents the girl of his choice a bunch of flowers as she comes from church on Sunday morning. If she accepts the floral tribute he calls at her home a few days later and the budding romance proceeds to its customary culmination.

In Saxony the groom, his best man and the ushers wear, instead of the conventional black suit, a long kimono-like garment trimmed with lace and ruffles, with bunches of flowers in the bands of their broad-brimmed hats. The bride carries a linen handkerchief which is sometimes as large as a small tablecloth. The size of the kerchief indicates the wealth of the bride's parents.

In Slav weddings the bridegroom fetches the bride from the home of her parents, a custom emblematic of the practice of his forebears who carried their mates away forcibly. At Albanian weddings it is correct for the bride to weep and show great reluctance in leaving home. The bridegroom must present his betrothed with a handsome dress for the marriage, no matter how poor he may be.

Of all oriental marriage ceremonies, those of Japan in the month when the cherry trees are in full blossom are the most beautiful. After making the momentous decision to accept each other "for better, for worse," the young couple consult the soothsayers to determine on what day they should wed to insure good fortune throughout their married life. The ceremony is usually performed in the afternoon, and at sunset the bride enters her "kaga," or carrying hammock, and sets out for her new home. She is followed by gift-bearers who display the wedding presents to spectators along the streets.

The "ceremony of the bath" is a quaint feature of the Egyptian wedding. On her wedding morning the young bride-to-be, accompanied by her girl friends and several musicians, sets out for the public bath, riding on a camel. Above her head is a canopy of bright-colored silk, topped with bunches of palm leaves. After the bride and her friends have bathed together, they are entertained by flute players, singers and story tellers.

Tit-Bits

A cinema director who had been turning a Riviera film was praising at the Lambs' club the food of southern France.

"You even found the French snails good, eh?" said a tea importer. "But I wonder how some of the delicacies I have seen in China would strike you—delicacies such as water-lily roots, birds' nests, ducks' gizzards, bean macaroni, eggs that have been ripened for years like cheese, tinned earthworms, marmalade made from roses, dog steaks, dried and preserved oysters."

"All I can say," replied the cinema director, "is that if I ever go to China to turn a film you may be sure I'll never try the tinned earthworms or the dog beefsteaks."

The Long Bow

"Some of the ridiculous and transparent inventions circulated by publicity agents about their celebrated or would-be celebrated employers," said Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia, "overshoot the mark. Like the two Texans who were bragging about their brothers.

"'My brother,' said the first Texan, 'once went to a billiard saloon, picked up a ball in his right hand and another in his left, and the result was powder.'

"'Well, that's nothing,' said the second Texan. 'My brother once went to a bull fight, and he took a bull in the left hand and another in the right; he squeezed them; result—bottle of meat extract.'"

Water Consumption

Records of cities show that the average quantity of water used each day per person ranges from seven to eight gallons among the poor, where there is only one faucet in the house, to about 60 gallons in the homes of wealthy persons. The average of an ordinary family in cities is estimated to be about 20 gallons daily for each member.

An Ecstatic Lover

When the sunlight is kissing the softness
Of your dear mouth's tender curve—
When the wind and the waves are petting you
With such familiar nerve,
Then I'm jealous of the elements,
And wishing I could be
Your elemental sweetheart
For you are that to me.

When the radio phone is caressing
The pink of your lovely ear,
When the loud speaker is boldly holding
Your breathless attention, my dear,
Then I'm jealous of your listening,
And wishing I could be
Your favorite radio sweetheart
And you'd tune in with me.

—Norton Stutson

Red Sox Here Tuesday Night

The initial game of the series between the Colonials and the Poughkeepsie Red Sox will be staged at the Fair Grounds on Tuesday evening. The Sox have been going strong this season and a good game is looked forward to.

Just who will receive the pitching assignment for the Brige City club is not known, but Russ Forsythe, former Colonial hurle will undoubtedly get the job. Bud Culloton will most likely oppose him. If this happens a thriller can be looked for. Freddie Dan, another former member of the Conials will play with the Sox.

Culloton and Forsythe have met on the battle field before in a game that lingered long with pal fandom resulted. The second game of the series will be played in Poughkeepsie on Thursday.

On the Fourth of July a doubleheader will be staged at the Fair Grounds when the Tannersville club makes its first appearance here.

Colonials Drub White Plains

In Poorest Game of Season at the Fair Grounds on Sunday—Visitors Unable to Score While Schirickmen Make 15 Runs.

With the score standing 15 to 0 in the Colonials' favor in the eighth inning, the game at the Fair Grounds was called Sunday. The White Plains team proved to be the worse attraction that the local club had booked in many games.

For the first five innings everything went along nicely, the score being in the locals' favor 1 to 0. But from this point on, the Schirickmen made a race track of the bases, scoring 3 in the sixth, 7 in the seventh and 4 in the eighth.

The way the visitors looked after the first few innings, some of the young semi-pro clubs around Kingston would battle them to a standstill. Five hits were made by the losers off Morgan.

The Colonials made 18 hits, of which number Deegan and Schwab each collected 3.

The game also was not without errors. The White Plains outfit erred five times and the Colonials once. All told the fans who turned out to see the Schirickmen in action for the first time in a week were disappointed. The box score:
